BREAST CANCER IN YOUNG WOMEN:
Evolving Understanding and New Initiatives

Thursday, April 10, 2014 • 5:30-8 p.m.
Baptist Hospital of Miami, Auditorium
8900 North Kendall Drive, Miami, Florida 33176

Guest Faculty: Ann H. Partridge, M.D., MPH
Medical Oncologist and Clinical Researcher; Founder and Director, Program for Young Women with Breast Cancer; Director, Adult Survivorship Program, Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and Brigham and Women’s Hospital; Associate Professor of Medicine, Harvard Medical School, Boston, Massachusetts

Overview and Purpose
The Omar Pasalodos, M.D., Memorial Lecture is held annually to honor Dr. Pasalodos’ dedication to women’s healthcare, community outreach and education. This lecture features a distinguished speaker and focuses on women’s healthcare issues that are equally relevant to a medical professional and an educated female medical consumer.

Target Audience
Doctors who care for female patients, particularly obstetricians, gynecologists, family physicians, general internists, endocrinologists, oncologists and psychologists, as well as related members of the care team, including nurses, pharmacists, social workers, marriage and family therapists, mental health counselors, occupational therapists, clinical laboratory personnel, respiratory therapists and radiology technologists.

Educational Objectives
Upon completion of this lecture, participants should be better able to:
- Recognize the unique issues facing young women with breast cancer, and examine recent incidence data.
- Implement comprehensive care strategies that address the distinct needs of young women at diagnosis and in survivorship.
- Optimize treatment and treatment decision-making as well as medical and psychosocial outcomes for young women with breast cancer.
- Identify new support initiatives, and effectively guide patients to utilize tools and resources recently developed for young women with breast cancer.

In Memoriam
Dr. Omar Pasalodos, a beloved, longtime member of the Baptist Health family, was a highly regarded physician leader, a dedicated philanthropist and a devoted husband and father. As an obstetrician-gynecologist and civic leader, Dr. Pasalodos dedicated his career to caring for his patients, promoting education and advocacy and contributing through volunteer leadership. He exemplified the best in medicine.

Dr. Pasalodos was a member of the medical staff at Baptist Hospital. He served on the Medical Board and was chief of obstetrics and gynecology from 1992 to 1994. At the time of his death, Dr. Pasalodos was chief medical officer for Baptist Health’s International Division. Among his community and philanthropic work, he was chairman of Florida International University’s Herbert Wertheim College of Medicine Dean’s Advisory Council. In addition, he served as a director of Doctors Hospital Foundation, the Baptist Health International Advisory Board, the Coral Gables War Memorial Youth Center, the Health Foundation of South Florida, the Miami Obstetrical and Gynecological Society and the William A. Little Society of University of Miami Alumni. He also was immediate past chairman of Informed Families, an organization dedicated to helping children grow up safe, healthy and drug-free.

Dr. Pasalodos was widely honored for his community involvement. He received the Distinguished Alumni Award from the William A. Little Society, and in 2011, Miami Beach International Fashion Week presented him with its Humanitarian Award as one of Miami’s 10 most dedicated philanthropists. To honor his passion and commitment to education and women’s healthcare, the Omar Pasalodos, M.D., Memorial Lecture is held annually. Each year a distinguished speaker addresses current and important women’s healthcare issues.

Baptist Health South Florida is honored to partner with the Herbert Wertheim College of Medicine at Florida International University and Health Foundation of South Florida to support the Omar Pasalodos, M.D., Memorial Lecture.
